AHB PRESENTS Jordan Piraino

USING CONTRACTS AS A TOOL IN SECURING YOUR LEGACY

Running any size business can be complex, and many small-time entrepreneurs start out on their own with little experience or support in managing all aspects of a business. Financially limited in resources, an unforeseen contract dispute could potentially be devastating. In this presentation, Jordan Piraino, a solo attorney with a practice in Sellwood, will talk about how to secure your legacy by using contracts, a tool that offers big protection for little expense. Come and learn:

- How to approach drafting and/or entering into new contracts;
- Clauses typically included in business contracts;
- Clauses you may consider adding to current contracts;
- How to protect yourself and your business in this evolving economic climate.

JORDEN PIRAINO specializes in business formation and maintenance, estate planning, trust administration, and probate. He assists business clients with creating the initial entity, contract drafting, acquisitions, and sales. He is the Current Chair of the Oregon State Bar Solo Small Firm Section and a member of the Sellwood Business Alliance. As a member of Oregon Advocates, he donates time to community members in need through programs created by Legal Aid Services of Oregon.
